UK packaging waste regulations

The packaging waste regulations allow the issue of evidence known as PRNs (or PERNs for exports) on post-consumer (or used) packaging that has been recycled to an approved standard in order for obligation producers to meet their recycling obligations.

To qualify for the issue of evidence, packaging waste must be UK sourced, (waste generated in the UK) the waste must not have been imported into the UK from countries outside the UK. No non-UK material will be mixed with UK material prior to sale, should you become aware of this you are obligated to tell us immediately and will not sell us the mixed material.

As an accredited exporter all packaging waste received from suppliers are sent for recycling at destinations sites that have been approved by the Environment Agency.

Evidence can only be issued on fully formed packaging that has become waste.

Evidence cannot be issued on:

- materials that became waste outside the UK and have been imported into the UK non-packaging waste
- non-target materials like items used to bind material for transport, examples include baling wire and strapping (however waste strapping can have evidence issued)
- packaging offcuts like material from a packaging manufacture that was never turned into ready to use packaging.

PERN's for a compliance period can only be issued on packaging waste received for recovery, or exported for recovery, during the accreditation period which is from 1 Jan – 31 Dec.

Evidence can only be issued on the tonnage of qualifying material. This can include material that's reasonably associated with that material, for example items that cannot be easily removed before the recovery process. This is known as target material and includes:

- labels glued to plastic bottles
- plastic lids attached to plastic or glass bottles
- labels glued to plastic film
- no more than minimal food/drink or organic contents
